Case Summary

On February 12, 2024, § 87(2)(b) called the CCRB and filed the following complaint.

On February 10, 2024, at approximately 1:50 a.m., § 87(2)(b) and three friends were driving in a rental vehicle, when their vehicle was pulled over by Police Officer Matthew Coffaro (Allegation A: Abuse of Authority, Within NYPD Guidelines), and several other officers of the Brooklyn South Specialized Unit Community Response Team (“BSSU CRT”), in two unmarked RMPs, near the intersection of Nostrand Avenue and Farragut Road in Brooklyn. PO Coffaro and the other officers approached, requested § 87(2)(b) and the other occupants’ identifications, and § 87(2)(b) asked why the officers stopped their vehicle. After not receiving a response, § 87(2)(b) repeated his question several additional times, and PO Coffaro and Police Officer Kevin Flash opened the rear door, grabbed § 87(2)(b) and pulled him out of the vehicle (Allegations B and C: Force, Within NYPD Guidelines). PO Coffaro handcuffed § 87(2)(b) threatened to arrest him (Allegation D: Abuse of Authority, Substantiated) and then frisked and searched him (Allegations E and F: Abuse of Authority, Substantiated). After discussing the interaction, PO Coffaro removed § 87(2)(b) handcuffs, escorted him back to the vehicle, and issued him Criminal Summons § 87(2)(b) (BR01) for disorderly conduct (Allegation G: Abuse of Authority, Substantiated). None of the other occupants of the vehicle were arrested or issued any summonses as a result.

The investigation obtained (6) Body-Worn Camera (“BWC”) videos (BR02) from the involved officers which captured the material aspects of this incident.

Findings and Recommendations

Allegation (A) Abuse of Authority: Police Officer Matthew Coffaro stopped the vehicle in which § 87(2)(b) and individuals were occupants.

Allegation (B) Force: Police Officer Matthew Coffaro used physical force against § 87(2)(b)

Allegation (C) Force: Police Officer Kevin Flash used physical force against § 87(2)(b)

Allegation (D) Abuse of Authority: Police Officer Matthew Coffaro threatened to arrest § 87(2)(b)

Allegation (E) Abuse of Authority: Police Officer Matthew Coffaro frisked § 87(2)(b)

Allegation (F) Abuse of Authority: Police Officer Matthew Coffaro searched § 87(2)(b)

Allegation (G) Abuse of Authority: Police Officer Matthew Coffaro issued an unlawful summons to § 87(2)(b)

§ 87(2)(b) stated (BR03) that on February 10, 2024, at approximately 1:50 a.m., he, his brother, and two friends, whom § 87(2)(b) declined to identify, were riding in a vehicle that his friend had rented and was operating. § 87(2)(b) explained that he and the others had bought takeout food and were driving around in the area. § 87(2)(b) was seated in the rear of the vehicle, on the left side behind the driver. § 87(2)(b) believed that his two friends seated in the front were wearing their seatbelts, but acknowledged that he and the other rear passenger were not wearing their seatbelts.

§ 87(2)(b) stated that, as his friend drove the rented vehicle toward the intersection of Nostrand Avenue and Farragut Road and stopped at the red light, two unmarked RMPs drove up to and stopped their vehicle, without lights or siren, by “block[ing] them in,” via one RMP pulling in front and the other RMP stopping behind. § 87(2)(b) did not believe that the driver had committed any traffic infractions or other violations prior to being stopped. § 87(2)(b) stated that upon stopping, (6) uniformed officers—identified through the investigation as PO Coffaro, Sgt. Stanislav Kushnir, Det. Carlo Cassata, PO Ahmed Ali, PO Flash, and PO Rosario Saintelme—exited from the RMPs, and approached their vehicle. § 87(2)(b) stated that PO Coffaro ordered all the occupants to lower all the windows, they complied, and PO Coffaro then asked for all of their identification cards. § 87(2)(b) asked why they had been stopped, however, PO Coffaro did not answer, and only repeated his order for their identifications. § 87(2)(b) stated that he and the others complied and provided their identifications to the officers.

§ 87(2)(b) stated that after providing their identifications, he asked the officers a few more times why they had stopped them, and after not receiving any response, he told the officers it “was illegal” for them to pull them over and not provide a reason. In response to his remark, § 87(2)(b) stated that PO Coffaro reached into the vehicle through the open window, and unlocked and opened the rear left passenger door. PO Coffaro and PO Flash then grabbed § 87(2)(b) by his left arm and shoulder, and pulled him out of the vehicle. § 87(2)(b) denied that he resisted in any way while being removed. PO Coffaro then handcuffed § 87(2)(b) and told him he “ha[d] no right to ask [the officers] questions.”

§ 87(2)(b) stated that the incident “escalated from there,” wherein he continued to ask why they were stopped, and requested their names and badge numbers. PO Coffaro told § 87(2)(b) he was issuing him a summons for not wearing a seat belt. Later in the interview, § 87(2)(b) recalled PO Coffaro telling him that he could have “charged” him with “resisting arrest... aggravated assault, and all [these] other extra [charges].” § 87(2)(b) stated that, after several minutes, wherein the officers “ran § 87(2)(b) license,” PO Coffaro told him he was “going to write [him] a different [summons],” removed his handcuffs, and then “searched” him, by reaching into his pants pockets.

Afterward, PO Coffaro told § 87(2)(b) that the officers were going to release him and the other occupants, and then issued § 87(2)(b) a summons for disorderly conduct, while neither the driver nor others received any summons. While reentering the vehicle, § 87(2)(b) acknowledged PO Coffaro and other officers provided him with RTKA cards.

The BWC video of PO Coffaro (BR04) captured the most relevant footage with regard to the above allegations.

PO Coffaro’s BWC (BR04) at 01:00, shows him and other officers approach a gray sedan they have stopped. PO Coffaro approaches the open front driver side window, announcing his name, and that he and the others are NYPD officers. The unidentified driver remarks, “I just want to know... If I’m getting a ticket, give me a ticket, so I can go. Thank you.” At 01:20, as PO Coffaro looks to his right, PO Flash asks the rear driver side passenger, identified as § 87(2)(b) for his name. § 87(2)(b) says he does not have to provide his name, and PO Flash replies that he does. § 87(2)(b) asks why the officers stopped their vehicle, and PO Flash replies, “You don’t have your seatbelt on. You have to give me your name.” The driver remarks, “A seatbelt in the back seat?” Officers are heard replying in the affirmative. PO Ali begins to collect the driver’s documentation.

At 04:50, § 87(2)(b) asks for PO Coffaro’s and other officers’ names and badge numbers. PO Coffaro replies that he will provide that information, and states that “In the State of New York, whether [they] want to agree or disagree, it is the Vehicle and Traffic law in the State of New York... All passengers in vehicles have to wear seat belts. That’s why my partner is trying to identify you. If you could please give my partner your name and date of birth, we can identify you § 87(2)(b) and get you guys out of here.” At 06:10, PO Coffaro asks again for § 87(2)(b) name or his identification. § 87(2)(b) does not comply, and requests the officer’s name, remarking, “Either that or I’ll just call my lawyer...” PO Coffaro provides his name to § 87(2)(b) and asks if he is willing to provide his identification. § 87(2)(b) replies, “No, because I’m riding in the back seat, and I know [officers] aren’t stopping every cab...”

At 06:40, PO Coffaro tells § 87(2)(b) “If you do not give me your name and date of birth, I cannot do my job... I cannot issue you a summons.” § 87(2)(b) asks why he is being issued a summons, and PO Coffaro replies, “Because you had no seatbelt on.” At 07:00, § 87(2)(b) tells PO Coffaro that he wants all the officers’ names first, and only then will he provide his name and date of birth. The front passenger appears to tell § 87(2)(b) to cooperate, and he replies to the front passenger, “No because I don’t got time to get arrested for nothing.” PO Coffaro agrees and says the officers do not have time for this either. § 87(2)(b) again demands every officer’s “first and last name,” and only then will he comply. At 07:28, PO Coffaro tells § 87(2)(b) that the officers will provide their information to him at the conclusion, and that he is going to ask him “one more time, are you going to give me your identification?” § 87(2)(b) says he does not have identification on him.

At 08:00, PO Coffaro says, “I need your name and your date of birth, I don’t need a physical [identification], just your name and date of birth. Can I please have that?” After a pause, § 87(2)(b) says no and that he is going to call his lawyer. At 08:20, PO Coffaro opens the unlocked rear door, via the outside handle, and orders § 87(2)(b) to step out of the vehicle. When § 87(2)(b) asks why and does not exit, PO Coffaro and PO Flash grab § 87(2)(b) right arm, and pull him out of the vehicle. PO Coffaro and PO Flash handcuff § 87(2)(b) as he continues to ask what he is being arrested for, and an officer says for OGA [i.e., obstructing governmental administration]. § 87(2)(b) repeats that he did not do anything, and officers tell him that he committed a traffic infraction [i.e., not wearing a seatbelt] and refused to provide his name.

At 09:25, PO Coffaro escorts § 87(2)(b) to the rear of the RMP, and tells the other officers, “Let me talk to § 87(2)(b).” At 09:35, PO Coffaro tells § 87(2)(b) that there are two options: “you give me the information I am asking for, and I issue you two summonses... The other scenario, is you don’t [provide name and date of birth] and I send you to Central Bookings for obstructing governmental administration.” At 10:00, PO Coffaro asks § 87(2)(b) for his name and date of birth, and he provides both. While Sgt. Kushnir conducts a warrant check, § 87(2)(b) continues to ask why he is being issued a summons, and maintains that he was not breaking any law.

At 12:20, PO Coffaro explains again that in the State of New York, all vehicle occupants must wear seatbelts, and explains that, despite the driver’s “license being messed up,” the officers are trying to show § 87(2)(b) and the other occupants discretion. At 13:10, PO Coffaro asks for consent to search so he can remove the handcuffs, § 87(2)(b) consents, and PO Coffaro searches his jacket and pants pockets. At 14:40, PO Coffaro removes the handcuffs, escorts § 87(2)(b) back to the vehicle, and tells him he is only going to give him one summons for “not giving his name” to the officers, and § 87(2)(b) reenters the vehicle.

At 19:00, PO Coffaro walks back to § 87(2)(b) open window, informing Sgt. Kushnir he is issuing § 87(2)(b) one summons for disorderly conduct, and tells § 87(2)(b) he is issuing him a summons, though not “a seatbelt summons.” PO Coffaro further tells him the summons is “just for refusing to [identify] yourself.” At 19:25, PO Coffaro again provides his name and shield and asks if he needs any further information. § 87(2)(b) asks for the officers’ names and badge numbers, PO Coffaro explains that his information is on the bottom of the summons, and obtains RTKA cards from the other officers, and provides them to § 87(2)(b).

C-Summons § 87(2)(b) (BR01), issued by PO Coffaro to § 87(2)(b) for disorderly conduct in violation of NYS PL § 240.20 (no subsection cited), charged that: § 87(2)(b) was asked multiple times for identification for seatbelt violation. § 87(2)(b) refused and refused to step out of vehicle. § 87(2)(b) had to be forcibly removed from vehicle due to his violent behavior.”

PO Coffaro stated (BR05) that he, Sgt. Kushnir, and Det. Cassata were conducting patrol within the confines of the 70th Precinct, when they stopped a gray sedan at the intersection of Nostrand Avenue and Farragut Road in Brooklyn. PO Coffaro did not recall what the vehicle was stopped for, but stated that there were several occupants, and they wanted to identify the occupants pursuant to the vehicle stop. PO Coffaro did not remember whether he individually decided to stop the vehicle, or whether the decision was made collectively.

Upon stopping the vehicle, PO Coffaro and the other officers approached the vehicle, while a second PBBS SU CRT unit, comprised of PO Ali, PO Flash, and PO Saintelme, in an unmarked RMP, also stopped and assisted. PO Coffaro stated that he thought he spoke with all of the occupants, and was trying to build rapport with them and gain compliance. While PO Ali verified the driver’s documentation, PO Coffaro requested the rear passenger, § 87(2)(b) identification, and after he said he did not possess it at the time, his name and date of birth. PO Coffaro stated that he requested this information because § 87(2)(b) had not been wearing his seatbelt, which is a summonsable offense. PO Coffaro stated that he requested § 87(2)(b) identification, name, and date of birth several times, and each time, § 87(2)(b) refused.

PO Coffaro stated that, after § 87(2)(b) multiple refusals to present identification or provide his name and date of birth, which he sought to issue him a summons, he opened the rear passenger door, and with PO Flash, grabbed § 87(2)(b) by his arm, and pulled him out the vehicle. After, PO Coffaro and other officers handcuffed § 87(2)(b) and brought him to the rear of their RMP. PO Coffaro stated that he did not use any other force besides grabbing and pulling § 87(2)(b) out of the vehicle.

At the rear of the RMP, PO Coffaro acknowledged frisking and searching § 87(2)(b) and stated he asked § 87(2)(b) for his consent since he was only detained rather than arrested, though he acknowledged that § 87(2)(b) was handcuffed at the time he consented. After speaking to § 87(2)(b) and explaining why they were seeking his identification in the first place, he removed the handcuffs, and issued § 87(2)(b) a C-Summons for disorderly conduct. PO Coffaro did not recall what “violent” behavior § 87(2)(b) engaged in except for his multiple refusals to comply, necessitating from pulling him out of the vehicle.

When asked why he decided to issue § 87(2)(b) a summons for disorderly conduct rather than the seatbelt violation, PO Coffaro stated that after § 87(2)(b) refusal, he could potentially have arrested him for OGA, for refusing to comply with the officers’ orders, which is not a charge eligible for summons or DAT. PO Coffaro stated that after § 87(2)(b) was removed from the vehicle, he became compliant, and so PO Coffaro used his discretion to only issue § 87(2)(b) one summons for disorderly conduct, rather than two for the initial seatbelt violation, because the two different summonses would necessitate § 87(2)(b) having to go to two different courts.

New York State Vehicle and Traffic Law (“NYS VTL”) § 1229-c (3)(5), provides in relevant part, that “No person shall operate [...] [or] be a passenger in a motor vehicle unless such person is restrained by a safety belt approved by the commissioner,” and that “[a]ny person who violates the provisions of [...] this section shall be punished by a civil fine of up to fifty dollars” (BR06).

NYPD Patrol Guide, Procedure 209-09, provides that “[w]hen issuing a summons returnable to the Traffic Violations Bureau or Criminal Court: [...] Inform violator of the offense committed. [...] Request [] proof of identity and residence. [...] Conduct license and warrant check. [...] Remove violator to command for investigation if doubt concerning identity exists” (BR07).

NYPD Patrol Guide, Procedure 221-01, provides that, “[f]orce may be used when it is reasonable [...] to place a person in custody or to prevent escape from custody. In all circumstances, any application or use of force must be reasonable under the circumstances. [...] When appropriate and consistent with personal safety, members of the service will use de-escalation techniques to safely gain voluntary compliance from a subject to reduce or eliminate the necessity to use force. [...] MOS will use only the reasonable force necessary to gain control or custody of a subject” (BR08).

New York State Penal Law (“NYS PL”) § 195.05, provides the “[a] person is guilty of obstructing governmental administration (OGA) when: such person intentionally obstructs, impairs or perverts the administration of law or other governmental function or prevents or attempts to prevent a public servant from performing an official function, by means of intimidation, physical force or interference. Obstructing governmental administration is a class A misdemeanor” (BR09).

In People v. Alston, the court, in dismissing as insufficient an OGA charge, held that a defendant’s “mere verbal refusal to give [the officer] his license, [...] cannot itself be considered intimidation or physical force or interference [...] [and] refusal to comply with a request for documentation is not an independently unlawful act that amounts to obstruction of governmental administration.” People v. Alston, 9 Misc. 3d 1046 (internal citations omitted) (BR10).

In People v. Reid, the court of appeals held that “[a] search must be incident to an actual arrest, not just to probable cause that might have led to an arrest, but did not (see People v. Evans, 43 N.Y.2d 160, “Unless and until a person is arrested, a full body search without a warrant or exceptional circumstances is constitutionally unreasonable”; see People v. Erwin, 42 N.Y.2d 1064, “Although the officers had reasonable cause to [...] to effectuate an arrest for a traffic infraction, no such arrest was made and, [...] the subsequent search was not incident to a lawful arrest”; and see Knowles v.

Iowa, 525 U.S. 113, “Once [defendant] was stopped for [VTL violation] and issued a citation, all the evidence necessary to prosecute that offense had been obtained. No further evidence [regarding VTL violation] was going to be found [] on the person of the offender”. People v. Reid, 24 N.Y.3d 615 (BR11).

In People v. Gonzalez, the court held that “[c]onsent to search is voluntary when it is a true act of the will, an unequivocal product of an essentially free and unconstrained choice. Voluntariness is incompatible with official coercion, actual or implicit, overt or subtle [...] (see Bumper v North Carolina, 391 U.S. 543, “Where there is coercion there cannot be consent”).” People v. Gonzalez, 39 N.Y.2d 122 (BR12).

NYS PL § 240.20, provides that, “[a] person is guilty of disorderly conduct when, with intent to cause public inconvenience, annoyance or alarm, or recklessly creating a risk thereof: (1.) He engages in fighting or in violent, tumultuous or threatening behavior; or (2.) He makes unreasonable noise; or (3.) In a public place, he uses abusive or obscene language, or makes an obscene gesture; or (4.) Without lawful authority, he disturbs any lawful assembly or meeting of persons; or (5.) He obstructs vehicular or pedestrian traffic; or (6.) He congregates with other persons in a public place and refuses to comply with a lawful order of the police to disperse; or (7.) He creates a hazardous or physically offensive condition by any act which serves no legitimate purpose. Disorderly conduct is a violation” (BR13).

In People v. Baker, the court opined that “critical to a charge of disorderly conduct is a finding that defendant’s disruptive statements and behavior were of a public rather than an individual dimension [...] which requires proof of an intent to threaten public safety, peace or order (or the reckless creation of such a risk). [...] The significance of the public harm element in disorderly conduct cases cannot be overstated. [...] [T]he validity of disorderly conduct charges has turned on the presence or absence of adequate proof of public harm [...] [which requires] consideration of many factors, including ‘the time and place of the episode under scrutiny; the nature and character of the conduct; the number of other people in the vicinity; whether they are drawn to the disturbance and, if so, the nature and number of those attracted; and any other relevant circumstances.’” People v. Baker, 20 N.Y.3d 354 (internal citations omitted) (BR14).

NYC Administrative Code, Section 14-173 provides guidance for officers seeking consent to search. In relevant part, officers must articulate, using plain and simple language delivered in a non-threatening manner, that the person who is the subject of the search is being asked to voluntarily, knowingly, and intelligently consent to such search, and explain that such search will not be conducted if such person refuses to provide consent to such search. Consent must be secured without threats or promises of any kind being made to such person. (BR18).

It is undisputed that PO Coffaro and other officers stopped the vehicle that § 87(2)(b) and his friends were in, and that § 87(2)(b) was not wearing his seatbelt. § 87(2)(g)

As the BWC footage demonstrates, within minutes of conducting the vehicle stop, PO Coffaro and other officers inform § 87(2)(b) that their vehicle was stopped because he was not wearing his seatbelt, in violation of NYS VTL § 1229-c. § 87(2)(g)

It is therefore recommended that Allegation A be closed as Within NYPD Guidelines.

§ 87(2)(g)

BWC shows that despite the officers’ numerous requests for his identification or alternatively his name and date of birth to issue him a summons, § 87(2)(b) explicitly refused to produce it. § 87(2)(g)

§ 87(2)(g) Second, the BWC footage shows that rather than reaching into the vehicle as alleged, PO Coffaro merely opened the unlocked door from the outside, and initially requested § 87(2)(b) step out, which he refused. Third, consistent across all accounts and footage, PO Coffaro and PO Flash pulled § 87(2)(b) from the vehicle by his arm, then pulled his arms behind his back to be handcuffed, without engaging in any other uses of force. § 87(2)(g)

It is therefore recommended that Allegations B and C be closed as Within NYPD Guidelines.

It is undisputed that PO Coffaro threatened to arrest § 87(2)(b) for OGA for refusing to identify himself, and subjected him to a frisk and search before removing the handcuffs. § 87(2)(g)

It is therefore recommended that Allegations D, E, and F be closed as Substantiated.

It is undisputed that PO Coffaro issued § 87(2)(b) C-Summons § 87(2)(b) (BR01) for disorderly conduct (NYS PL § 240.20), based on § 87(2)(b) “refus[ing to provide identification and] to step out of vehicle [resulting in him being] forcibly removed from vehicle due to his violent behavior.” § 87(2)(g)

BWC footage does not show any behavior or conduct of § 87(2)(b) that could objectively be deemed as “violent.” § 87(2)(g)

It is therefore recommended that Allegation G be closed as Substantiated.
