TWELFTH CAUSE OF ACTION

Equal Protection Clause under 42 U.S.C. § 1983

96. Plaintiff repeats and realleges each and every allegation as if fully set forth herein.

97. The Defendants' conduct was tantamount to discrimination against Plaintiff based on his disabilities and ethnicity. This disparate treatment caused Plaintiff to suffer serious injuries.

98. The NYPD discriminatory program is pervasive and evident throughout many of its practices, including those used to stop, question, frisk, and arrest Plaintiff.

99. The NYPD has maintained illegal stop and question practices, as part of a systematic discriminatory program aimed towards minorities. The searches occur nearly every day without the requisite level of suspicion, and are so customary as to constitute official municipal policy.

100. One such program is the Clean Halls Buildings program, which initially created to combat illegal activity in apartment buildings. Many buildings are enrolled and remain in the program without regard to whether there is sustained or substantial crime. Thus, residents and their unsuspecting guests are left subject to the unscrupulous stop, question, search, citation, and arrest practices of local NYPD officers.

101. The impact on Blacks and Latinos as compared to Whites is disparaging and significant. From 2006 to 2010, approximately 94.4% of those stopped and questioned for trespassing were Black and Latino, although they only accounted for 52% of the New York City population. Blacks and Latinos were 6 times more likely to be stopped by police than Whites, Asians, and Native Americans combined.

102. The NYPD has also maintained illegal stop and frisk policies, as part of a systematic discriminatory program aimed towards minorities.

103. The New York State Attorney General's 1999 inquiry into the NYPD's stop and frisk program found that between the 175,000 "UF-250" stop and frisk forms filed by officers indicated consistent and significant racial skewing.

104. According to the report, Blacks comprised 25.6% of the City's population, yet 50.6% of all persons stopped were Black. Hispanics comprised 23.7% of the City's population yet, 33.0% of all stops were of Hispanics. By contrast, Whites made up 43.4% of the City's population, but accounted for only 12.9% of all stops. The disparities were further pronounced in precincts where the majority of the population was White. Where Blacks and Hispanics each represent less than 10% of the population, Blacks and Hispanics accounted for more than 50% of stops during any given period. The New York State Attorney General's finding was that 8 out of 9 searches did not uncover contraband.

105. Under the NYPD's policy, if a person is stopped and questioned without official use of force (or with consent) and gives his or her name, documentation is not required. Consequently, NYPD officers frequently do not file the proper UF-250 form to record stop and frisk searches.

106. Many experts believe the numbers available from NYPD offices do not accurately reflect the discrimination of the NYPD's stop and frisk program. In one independent street interview conducted with 100 Black and Hispanic males between the ages of 14 and 35, 81 participants reported having been stopped, patted down and questioned, without being arrested.

107. The NYPD arrests more Blacks, Hispanics, and other minorities as compared to Whites in furtherance of its systematic discriminatory program.

108. The NYPD frequently uses marijuana arrest cases to bolster both its productivity and arrest reports. Marijuana possession is an infraction payable by fine in New York City, yet from 1997 to 2006, 52% Blacks, 31% Hispanics were arrested for possession of marijuana, as compared to 15% of Whites.

109. Despite the overwhelming evidence from U.S. government surveys that have consistently shown young Whites between the ages of 18 and 25 using marijuana at higher rates than either young Hispanics and Blacks, in 2006, the marijuana arrest rate of Blacks was five times that of Whites. The arrest rate of Hispanics in 2006 was nearly three times that of Whites.

110. Arrest records consistently show that where minorities represent a small portion of the population, they also represent the majority of arrestees (with the exception of Staten Island). In Staten Island, Blacks were about 10% of the population, but were 37% of marijuana arrestees. In Manhattan, Blacks were about 17% of the population, but accounted for 43% of marijuana arrestees. In Queens, Blacks were about 20% of the population, but accounted for 57% of marijuana arrestees. In Brooklyn, Blacks were about 36% of the population, but were an overwhelming 65% of marijuana arrestees. Finally, in the Bronx, Blacks were 36% of the population, but accounted for 48% of marijuana arrestees. The White population and the White percentage of marijuana arrestees in each borough were equally skewed, but in the opposite direction.

111. Trespassing and marijuana arrests are the most effective means available for obtaining fingerprints, photographs, and DNA samples (since 2006) from people never before entered in the criminal justice databases. Where those trespassing and marijuana stops result in the issuance of a fine rather than arrest, the outcome is often still detrimental. Often times, young persons in the housing projects (such as those enrolled in the Clean Halls Buildings program) or other poor neighborhoods do not have the means to pay the fines, and a criminal courts will issue a warrant for their arrest. Many times, the subsequent occasion on which that person is stopped, questioned, frisked, or searched by the NYPD, the outstanding warrant will ultimately serve as a basis for arrest.

112. As a result of the foregoing, Plaintiff was deprived of rights under the Equal Protection Clause of the Constitution of the United States, and are thereby entitled to damages.

THIRTEENTH CAUSE OF ACTION*Monell*

113. Plaintiff repeats and realleges each and every allegation as if fully set forth herein.

114. This is not an isolated incident. Defendant City of New York, through its policies, customs, and practices, directly caused the constitutional violations suffered by Plaintiff.

115. Defendant City of New York, through the NYPD, has had, and still has, hiring practices that it knows will lead to the hiring of police officers lacking the intellectual capacity and moral fortitude to discharge their duties in accordance with the Constitution of the United States and is indifferent to the consequences.

116. Defendant City of New York, at all relevant times, was aware that the individual defendants routinely committed constitutional violations such as those at issue here and has failed to change its policies, practices, and customs to stop this behavior.

117. Defendant City of New York, at all relevant times, was aware that the individual defendants are unfit officers who have previously committed the acts alleged herein and/or have a propensity for unconstitutional conduct.

118. Defendant City of New York, through the NYPD, has a de facto quota policy that encourages unlawful stops, unlawful searches, false arrests, the fabrication of evidence, and perjury.

119. This quota policy requires that police officers, including the individual defendants named herein, make a certain number of arrests and/or write a certain number of summonses and desk appearance tickets within an allocated time period.

120. Officers that meet the required number of arrests, summonses, and desk appearance tickets are classified as active officers.

121. Officers that do not meet the required number of arrests, summonses, and desk appearance tickets are classified as inactive officers.

122. Active officers are given promotion opportunities that are not afforded to inactive officers.

123. Active officers are given overtime opportunities, such as security at parades, etc., that are not afforded to inactive officers.

124. The quota policy does not differentiate between arrests, summonses, and desk appearance that are supported by probable cause and ones that are not.

125. Defendant City of New York, through the NYPD, does nothing to ensure that officers, in trying to fulfill this quota policy, are making arrests and issuing summonses and desk appearance tickets lawfully. There are no post-arrest investigations that are performed, and no policies in place that would prevent abuse of this policy, such as is demonstrated in the instant case.

126. Defendant City of New York, through the NYPD, does nothing to determine the outcome of the charges levied against arrestees in order to proper counsel officers as to the lawfulness of their arrests/issuance of summonses and desk appearance tickets.

127. The failure of Defendant City of New York to, inter alia, take these steps encourages, inter alia, unlawful stops, unlawful searches, false arrests, the fabrication of evidence, and perjury, in that the quota policy provides, inter alia, career and monetary incentives to officers, including the individual defendants herein.

128. Defendant City of New York, through the NYPD, has a de facto overtime policy that encourages and incentivizes unlawful stops, unlawful searches, false arrests, the fabrication of evidence, and perjury.

129. Defendant City of New York, through the NYPD, provides officers, including the individual defendants herein, with overtime opportunities when arrest are made, or summonses and desk appearance tickets are issued.

130. Upon making an arrest or issuing summons or desk appearance ticket, an arresting officer submits a request for overtime to his commanding officer.

131. These requests are essentially rubberstamped, with commanding officers performing no investigation into the circumstances of the arrest.

132. Defendant City of New York, through the NYPD, does not perform any post-arrest investigation and there are no policies in place to prevent abuse of this overtime policy.

133. As a result of this overtime policy, officers, including the individual officers named herein, abuse this overtime policy, making baseless arrests and wrongfully issuing summonses and desk appearance tickets to substantially supplement their income through overtime pay.

134. As noted above, “flaking” is the practice by officers of planting drugs on or near targeted and innocent individuals, and then doctoring NYPD and legal paperwork to ensure that the charges stick.

135. This practice of flaking is used to ensure that quota and productivity goals are met by NYPD officers so that they may enjoy, among other things, financial and promotional opportunities within the NYPD.

136. This practice is widespread within the NYPD. So much so that, at the trial of Jason Arbeeny, an NYPD veteran convicted of flaking in order to meet quotas, Supreme Court Justice Gustin Reichbach stated, ““Having been a judge for 20 years, I thought I was not naïve regarding the reality of narcotics enforcement. But even the Court was shocked, not only by the seeming pervasive scope of the misconduct, but even more distressingly by the seeming casualness by which such conduct is employed.”

137. At this same trial, Stephen Anderson, a former detective with the NYPD, testified that “flaking” is common within the NYPD, including among supervisors, detectives, and police officers.

138. Mr. Anderson further stated that members of the NYPD pursued this practice to meet quotas, reasoning that arrestees “would be out of jail tomorrow, anyway.”

139. The creation of this false evidence was also found by a jury in the matter Kwame Garnett v. Undercover Officer C0039, et al., 13 Civ. 7083 (GHW), United States District Court, Southern District of New York. There, the jury found that the undercover officer had fabricate evidence to implicate the plaintiff in a drug sale.

140. Furthermore, the discriminatory pattern and practices by the NYPD, as well as the flaking, as set forth above, has furthered the quota and overtime policies of the NYPD.

141. Members of the NYPD are able to meet their quotas by preying on ethnic minorities, including Plaintiff.

142. By targeting these populations with impunity, members of the NYPD meet their quotas and also obtain guaranteed overtime pay as set forth above.

143. As such, Defendant City of New York actually rewards discriminatory and illegal by members of the NYPD behavior by providing guaranteed overtime to these officers without any oversight or limitations.

144. These policies, practices, and customs were the moving force behind Plaintiff injuries.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff respectfully requests judgment against Defendants as follows:

- (a) Compensatory damages against all defendants, jointly and severally, on each cause of action;
- (b) Punitive damages against the individual defendants, jointly and severally, on each cause of action;
- (c) Reasonable attorney's fees and costs pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1988; and
- (d) Such other and further relief as this Court deems just and proper.
