CCRB Testimony

On May 25, 2012, § 87(2)(b) provided the following telephone statement (encl. 5A). On May 30, 2012, § 87(2)(b) was interviewed at the CCRB (encl. 5B-E). § 87(2)(g)

On May 16, 2012, at 8:40 a.m., § 87(2)(b) was at her residence, located at § 87(2)(b) in Brooklyn. Also present at the location were § 87(2)(b)'s grandson § 87(2)(b) and two of his friends, known through investigation to be § 87(2)(b) and § 87(2)(b). § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) was visiting her following his release from incarceration and was expecting more friends to visit him that morning. The doorbell rang and § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) went downstairs to open the door. The house has three stories and § 87(2)(b) stayed upstairs while § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) answered the door. § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) called for § 87(2)(b) to come downstairs. When she went downstairs, she saw four police officers in plainclothes standing at the entrance. At least one, and possibly all of the officers had already entered the apartment. The officers who entered were identified through investigation as Det. Michael Ragona, Det. Brian Ilund, and Sgt. Raymond Tomins of the Warrant Squad. Det. Ragona was described as a white or Hispanic man who stood 5'3" tall, weighed 160 pounds, and was 35 to 40 years old. Sgt. Tomins was described as a white man who stood 6'2" tall, weighed over 200 pounds, with reddish hair, who was in his 50s. Det. Ilund was described as a short white man.

Det. Ragona asked § 87(2)(b) who lived at the location and she replied that she did. Det. Ragona explained that he had a warrant for the arrests of § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) and § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) is § 87(2)(b)'s son and § 87(2)(b) is her granddaughter. § 87(2)(b) told Det. Ragona that they did not live at the location. Det. Ragona insisted they had lived at the location at some point and § 87(2)(b) explained that they used to live there but do not anymore. Det. Ragona told § 87(2)(b) the officers needed to search the premises. § 87(2)(b)

§ 87(2)(b) asked to see the warrant, but Det. Ragona did not show it to her. Det. Ragona had a rolled up piece of paper in his hand but § 87(2)(b) did not know if this was the warrant. The other officers walked past § 87(2)(b) into her home. § 87(2)(b) told the officers they did not have permission to enter her home, but the officers entered anyway. In her telephone statement, § 87(2)(b) also stated that she told the officers that they could not search the house. At first, Det. Ragona stayed by the entrance with § 87(2)(b) while the other officers went upstairs, but at some point Det. Ragona also went upstairs. § 87(2)(b) said the officer searched all the rooms in her home, but could not explain how she knew they did this as she stayed downstairs during the search and did not walk through the apartment with them. After the search, Det. Ragona told § 87(2)(b) to inform § 87(2)(b) and § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) that the officers were looking for them and officers then left.

Witness: § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b)

- § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) at the time of the incident, is a black man § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b), and has black hair and brown eyes. § 87(2)(b) is incarcerated with no known release date.

CCRB Testimony

On February 13, 2013, § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) was interviewed at Robert N. Davoren Center (RNDC) on Rikers Island (encl. 6A-D). § 87(2)(g) § 87(2)(g)

On May 16, 2012, § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) returned home to § 87(2)(b) in Brooklyn after being incarcerated for two years. This location is a three-story brownstone private house. On the first floor are the living room, which is the room in which the front door is located, as well as the kitchen, dinette, and a closet. In front of the door are stairs to the second floor. On the second floor are two bedrooms, a bathroom, a linen closet, and the boiler room. On the third floor, which is accessed by stairs from the second floor in which there is a landing and the stairs turn 90 degrees, there are another two bedrooms, a linen closet, and a coat closet.

§ 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b)'s friends, § 87(2)(b) and § 87(2)(b) came over to visit. Approximately 10 minutes after they arrived, several officers knocked on the door. § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) answered the door. He opened the door only a few inches wider than his body to speak with the officers. They asked if they could come into the house and § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) asked why. The officers said that they had a search warrant for § 87(2)(b) and § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) and brushed past § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) into the house. At this time, the officers did not specify whether they meant § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) or § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) and § 87(2)(b) were still in the living room. § 87(2)(b) was upstairs. Other family members were also in the house. § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) did not remember how many officers were present but four ultimately entered the house and there were more outside. The officers were all male and were wearing street clothes, not suits.

§ 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) told the officers that his name was § 87(2)(b) but that he had just been released from Rikers Island and did not have any open warrants. At some point, the officers asked § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) for his ID, which he provided. After looking at § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b)'s ID, the officers stated that they were looking for § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b). The officers showed papers with photos of § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) and § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b). The photo of § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) was an old photo. § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) stated that the papers were to question § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) and § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) and did not indicate that the officers could search the house. § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) stated that the papers with the photos of § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) and § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) had, along with the photo, what appeared to be a criminal charge and a physical description. § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) did not see what the charges were and did not see whether § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b)'s paper said "parole" or a criminal charge. The officers then stated that they had a search warrant and that they were going to search the house. At some point, the officers said that § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) was wanted by Parole and § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) had a bench warrant.

Officers searched the first floor by looking in the closet and opening cabinets in the kitchen. § 87(2)(b) came downstairs as two officers were walking up the stairs and told the officers that § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) and § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) did not reside at the location. She told the officers that § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) has her own apartment and that § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) has his own address and has not lived there in a while. § 87(2)(b) said that § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) did not have the authority to allow the officers to enter her house. Officers told § 87(2)(b) that when § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) and § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) were arrested, they had provided ID that had the location as their residence. § 87(2)(b) told the officers that they lived there a long time ago and everyone uses her address but that they do not live there. One officer, who § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) could not identify, spoke aggressively to § 87(2)(b) and said that if she prevented them from searching, she would be arrested. § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) told the officer to stop speaking aggressively to § 87(2)(b) who is elderly. § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) also told § 87(2)(b) not to aggravate the officers because he was under the impression at the time that the officers had a search warrant.

Two officers went to the second floor and searched each of the bedrooms by flipping the mattresses to look under the bed and looking in any closets. They also looked in the bathroom in the shower and under the sink, which could have fit a person inside. They glanced around the boiler room, which is a small room, and opened the door to the linen closet. The officers went to the third floor and searched each of the two bedrooms and the bathroom on the third floor in the same manner. They also looked into the coat closet that is the same size as the boiler room and the linen closet. The entire search took approximately 20 minutes.

When the officers left, § 87(2)(b) who had gone to the living room and remained there, told them not to come back because § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) and § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) do not live there. § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) stated that before the officers left, he confirmed with them that they had warrants for the persons of § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) and § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) and not a search warrant for the location. § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) believed that the officers came that day because that was the day § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) was released. § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) noted that he and his father look a lot alike, particularly their facial structure, though § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b)'s complexion is lighter. § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) noted that § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) looks young for his age, in his early 30s as opposed to his early 40s.

Witness: § 87(2)(b)

- § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) at the time of the incident, is a black man § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b), and has black hair and brown eyes. He is a friend of § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) S.

CCRB Testimony

On April 30, 2013, § 87(2)(b) provided a telephone statement (encl. 7). § 87(2)(g)

§ 87(2)(b) stated that § 87(2)(b) opened the door while § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) and § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) were on the stairs near the door. § 87(2)(b) asked to see a warrant and told the officers that they could not enter. The officers said that they were looking for § 87(2)(b) and § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) but they did not say why they were looking for either of them. The officers told her that they did not need to show her a warrant and that they could technically break down the door. The officers walked past § 87(2)(b) into the house. The officers asked where § 87(2)(b) was and said that they knew he was there. § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) stated that he was § 87(2)(b) but that he had just gotten out of jail. The officers looked at § 87(2)(b)'s ID as well as § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b). § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) started saying the same things as § 87(2)(b) i.e. that the officers needed a warrant. Both § 87(2)(b) and § 87(2)(b) continued to ask the officers why they were in the house and the officers said that they would take § 87(2)(b) in. § 87(2)(b) argued with the officers about them showing a warrant and whether they had a warrant and said that they could not search the house without a warrant, but after a while, she gave up arguing and let the officers go about their search. § 87(2)(b) believed they searched the entire house, but he stayed on the first floor. § 87(2)(b)

§ 87(2)(b) followed the officers as they went upstairs. § 87(2)(b) did not believe the officers ever showed any documentation.

CCRB Testimony (encl. 11A-B)

On April 26, 2013, Sgt. Tomins was interviewed at the CCRB.

On May 16, 2012, at 8:40 a.m., Sgt. Tomins and Det. Ragona were at § 87(2)(b) in Brooklyn in regards to a parole warrant. Sgt. Tomins did not conduct any investigation in regards to this warrant, as that is the responsibility of the investigating officer, in this case, Det. Ragona. A woman, identified via investigation as § 87(2)(b) answered the door and let them in. Sgt. Tomins never learned § 87(2)(b)'s identity. Sgt. Tomins did not remember exactly what § 87(2)(b) said or did to allow them to enter, but there was no problem or argument in regards to the officers entering. Sgt. Tomins did not hear any officer make threats in order to gain entry into the house. The investigating officer usually does the talking, not Sgt. Tomins. He did not remember which officers entered.

At some point when they were inside, a black man, identified through investigation as § 87(2)(b) approached them. Sgt. Tomins did not recall whether there were other people in the home. They did not have the warrant with them, but most likely had an arrest photo of the individual for whom they were looking. Sgt. Tomins did not know whether there were multiple warrants or if they were looking for multiple people. The officers obtained ID from § 87(2)(b) to verify that he was not the individual for whom they were searching. Sgt. Tomins did not recall the civilians interfering in the search in any way. No one was threatened with arrest if they interfered in the search. He did not recall if § 87(2)(b) was ever threatened with arrest by himself or any officer. Sgt. Tomins did not recall any civilians objecting to the officers being in the house or asking them to leave. Sgt. Tomins did not specifically recall whether he participated in the search but normally he would have. Sgt. Tomins stated that there was nothing remarkable about the incident and that had the civilians been uncooperative, he would have noted it in his memo book.

Witness Officer: DET MICHAEL RAGONA

- Det. Ragona, § 87(2)(b) at the time of the incident, is a white man § 87(2)(b), and has black hair and brown eyes.
- On May 16, 2012, Det. Ragona worked from 4:27 a.m. to 1 p.m. He was assigned to warrant enforcement with Sgt. Raymond Tomins, Det. Brian Ilund, Det. Jason Garcia, and Det. Jose Dejesus. He was in plainclothes and assigned to an unmarked minivan.

Memo Book (encl. 8A-C)

At 8:40 a.m., Det. Ragona was at § 87(2)(b) At 9 a.m., he resumed patrol.

CCRB Testimony (encl. 9A-B)

On April 24, 2013, Det. Ragona was interviewed at the CCRB. § 87(2)(g)

On May 16, 2012, at 8:40 a.m., Det. Ragona, Sgt. Tomins, and Det. Ilund were at the entrance of § 87(2)(b) in Brooklyn in regards to a parole warrant for § 87(2)(b). There was also an I-card regarding § 87(2)(b). § 87(2)(b) resides at the location. Det. Garcia and Det. Dejesus were guarding the front and back of the house to make sure that no one fled. Det. Ragona knocked on the door and § 87(2)(b)'s mother who resides there, answered. Det. Ragona explained who they were and § 87(2)(b) invited the officers in. As Det. Ragona explained that they were looking for § 87(2)(b), § 87(2)(b) came downstairs and yelled and cursed at the officers. § 87(2)(b) started yelling at the officers. Det. Ragona stopped engaging with § 87(2)(b) and searched the apartment because there was a parole warrant for § 87(2)(b).

Det. Ragona, Det. Ilund, and Sgt. Tomins all searched the house. § 87(2)(b) and § 87(2)(b) followed them around as they searched. § 87(2)(b) and § 87(2)(b) did not interfere in the search. There were other people in the house, but Det. Ragona did not interact with them. At some point, Det. Ragona asked § 87(2)(b) for his ID, which he provided. Det. Ragona wanted to know who he was because he was acting belligerent toward the officers. It is possible that Det. Ragona had a warrant for someone else who resided at the location, but he did not remember whether he did.

Det. Ragona believed § 87(2)(b) was at the residence because it is his mother's address, which they obtained from his arrest history and parole history. Det. Ragona stated that a parole warrant follows the wanted individual to any subsequent residence, including the residences of his family. Det. Ragona stated that the address § 87(2)(b) provided, § 87(2)(b) is the residence of his ex-girlfriend, § 87(2)(b). Det. Ragona did not believe that § 87(2)(b) was in the house at the moment he executed the warrant. He had intended to interview the family and search the house.

Witness Officer: DET BRIAN ILUND

- Det. Ilund, § 87(2)(b) at the time of the incident, is a white male § 87(2)(b), and has brown eyes and blue eyes.
- On May 16, 2012, Det. Ilund worked from 4:27 a.m. to 1 p.m. He was assigned to warrant enforcement with Det. Michael Ragona and Sgt. Raymond Tomins. He was in plainclothes and assigned to an unmarked van.

Memo Book (encl. 12A-B)

At 8:40 a.m., Det. Ilund arrived at § 87(2)(b). At 9 a.m., he resumed patrol.

CCRB Testimony (encl. 13A-B)

On May 14, 2013, Det. Ilund was interviewed at the CCRB. Det. Ilund did not recall this incident. He did not recognize photos of § 87(2)(b) or § 87(2)(b).

Investigation Findings and Recommendations

Allegations Not Pleaded

Though § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) alleged that an officer threatened to arrest § 87(2)(b), she did not make this allegation. § 87(2)(g)

Allegation A – Abuse of Authority: Sgt. Raymond Tomins supervised the entry and search of § 87(2)(b) in Brooklyn.

It is undisputed that Sgt. Tomins supervised the search of the location and that the officers only search places where a person could be hiding. It is also undisputed that, whether or not § 87(2)(b) provided consent for the officers to enter, the officers did not obtain consent to search the house, § 87(2)(g)

§ 87(2)(b) stated that in response to the officers' request to search the house, she stated that § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) and § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) did not reside there and never provided consent to enter. She stated in her telephone statement that she also specifically objected to the search. § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) stated that he only told § 87(2)(b) to not interfere with the officers because the officers told him that they specifically had a search warrant. § 87(2)(g)

Det. Ragona, the primary NYPD investigating officer of § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b)'s parole violation and the only officer with any substantial recollection of the incident, stated § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) allowed the officers to enter but and when § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) and § 87(2)(b) subsequently began cursing at the officers, the officers stopped engaging with them and searched the house. He also stated that he was aware of the § 87(2)(b) address and that it was the residence of § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b)'s ex-girlfriend, § 87(2)(b) an I-card was issued as a result. Det. Ragona stated that he researched § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b)'s residence based on his arrest history and that he was aware that § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) was § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b)'s mother's, i.e. § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b)'s, residence. However, he had no further reason to believe that § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) inside at that time or whether § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) was residing there.

§ 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b)'s arrest history shows until 2008, he provided his address as § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b). His next reason to provide an address came with his parole on § 87(2)(b). The parole warrant for § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b) shows that his approved address was § 87(2)(b) but that he changed his address to an unknown address without notifying his parole officer. However, an I-card § 87(2)(b) issued in § 87(2)(b) showed § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b)'s address as § 87(2)(b) § 87(2)(b).

A parole warrant is the functional equivalent of an arrest warrant for the purpose of having probable cause to apprehend an individual. People v. Diaz, 618, N.Y.S.2d 1000 (1994 – Sup. Ct. Richmond County) (encl. 1A-D). Officers may search what they reasonably believe to be the parolee's residence to look for him, so long as they reasonably believe the parolee to be present. People v. Smith, N.Y.S.2d 447 (2005 – Sup. Ct. Bronx County) (encl. 1E-H). A mere search of outdated police records is insufficient to conclude that an address that was valid years ago is an individual's current residence. Id.

An arrest warrant is invalid to search the residence of a third party. People v. Cabral, 560 N.Y.S.2d 71 (1990 – Sup. Ct. Kings County) (encl. I-M). Absent a valid search warrant or exigent circumstances, consent is required to search a location and permission to enter a residence does not constitute permission to search the residence. People v. Lewis, 462 N.Y.S.2d 884 (1983 – 1st Dept.) (encl. N-Q). Consent must be knowing and voluntary and a false statement regarding the presence of a warrant negates the possibility of consent. Bumper v. North Carolina, 391 U.S. 543, 548 (1968) (encl. 1R-AA).

§ 87(2)(g)

§ 87(2)(g)

§ 87(2)(b) it is recommended that allegation A be substantiated.
