104. Plaintiff repeats and re-alleges the allegations set forth above as though fully set forth at length herein.

105. The acts by the police Defendants described above were carried out pursuant to policies and practices of Defendant, CITY, which were in existence at the time of the conduct alleged herein and were engaged in with the full knowledge, consent, and cooperation and under the supervisory authority of the Defendant City and its agency, the NYPD.

106. At all times material to this complaint, Defendant, CITY, acting through its Police Department and through the individual Defendants had de facto policies, practices, customs and usages which were a direct and proximate cause of the unconstitutional conduct alleged herein.

107. At all times hereinafter mentioned, Defendant, CITY, had a policy and practice of ignoring citizens' rights as guaranteed by the United States Constitution and the Constitution of the State of New York.

108. Defendant, City, had a policy of ignoring law enforcement improprieties and misconduct, including the purposeful and wrongful accusation of citizens' committing crimes that it knew they had not committed.

109. That the City's policymaker's failure to train its employees in the constitutional limits of their authority evinced a pattern of deliberate indifference to the constitutional rights of the citizens of the City of New York

110. At all times material to this complaint, Defendant, CITY, acting through its Police Department and through the individual Defendants, had de facto policies, practices, customs, and usages of failing to properly train, screen, supervise, or discipline employees and police officers, and of failing to inform the individual Defendants' supervisors of their need to train, screen, supervise or discipline said Defendants.

111. These policies, practices, customs, and usages were a direct and proximate cause of the unconstitutional conduct alleged herein.

112. At all times material to this complaint, the Defendant CITY, acting through its police department and through the individual Defendants, had de facto policies, practices, customs and/or usages of failing to assure that that citizens' constitutional rights were protected, including the right not to be wrongfully accused of committing crimes that the police and district attorney knew they had not committed.

113. At all times Defendant, CITY, had a policy of prosecuting individuals in violation of their constitutional rights to be free from searches and seizures.

114. All of the acts by the police individual Defendants described above were carried out pursuant to policies and practices of the City of New York and the Police Department, which were in existence at the time of the conduct alleged herein and were engaged in with the full knowledge, consent, and cooperation and under the supervisory authority of the Defendant City and its agency and the NYPD.

115. The existence of such unlawful de facto policies and/or well-settled and widespread customs and practices has been known to supervisory and policy-making officers and officials of the CITY and the NYPD for a substantial period of time.

116. Despite knowledge of such unlawful de facto policies and practices, these supervisory and policy-making officers and officials of the CITY and the NYPD did not take steps to terminate these policies and practices, did not discipline individuals who engaged in such practices, or otherwise properly train police officers with regard to the constitutional and statutory limits on the exercise of their authority, and instead sanctioned and ratified these policies, customs, and practices through their deliberate indifference to or reckless disregard of the effect of said policies, customs and practices upon the constitutional rights of persons in the City of New York.

117. The CITY's policies and practices in existence at the time of the conduct complained of herein, which caused Plaintiff's injuries herein include, inter alia, the following:

- a. The failure to properly supervise, train, instruct, and discipline police officers with regard to proper conduct and investigation at and in relation to a crime scene;

- b. The failure to properly supervise, train, instruct, and discipline police officers with regard to the preparation of truthful accusatory instruments;
- c. The failure to properly supervise, train, instruct, and discipline police officers with regard to the preparation of truthful police paperwork, or to correctly and accurately document and preserve evidence or to memorialize investigative steps taken, or circumstances surrounding the obtaining of evidence, that could be relevant to the investigation and/or prosecution, and/or discoverable in any litigation;
- d. The failure to properly supervise, train, instruct, and discipline police officers with regard to the New York State Penal Law and the state and federal Constitutions, and with regard to adequate evidence of crimes and to discipline those who unjustifiably charge and prosecute or continue to prosecute persons accused of crimes in the absence of probable cause;
- e. the failure to properly supervise, train, instruct, and discipline police officers, including Defendants herein, known to be irresponsible in their dealings with citizens of the community, known to violate state and federal law and state and federal constitutional limitations in their investigative and law enforcement conduct, known to fabricate and falsify evidence, known to deprive criminal Defendants of their right to a fair trial, and known to arrest and initiate/continue prosecution in the absence of probable cause;
- f. Failing to establish or assure the functioning of a bona fide and meaningful departmental system for dealing with complaints of police misconduct, but instead responding to these types of complaints with bureaucratic power and official denials calculated to mislead the public;
- g. Failing to adequately investigate, monitor, audit, and respond to citizen complaints and other claims of police misconduct with the NYPD, such that Defendant City and the NYPD knew about and acquiesced in a custom of tolerating constitutional, statutory, and common law violations;
- h. The tacit acceptance of and encouragement of a code of silence wherein police officers regularly cover up police misconduct by refusing to report other officers' misconduct or by telling false and/or incomplete stories, inter alia, in sworn testimony, official reports, in statements to the Civilian Complaint Review Board ("CCRB") and the Internal Affairs Bureau, and in public statements designed to cover for and/or falsely exonerate accused police officers;

- i. Encouraging and/or failing to discipline officers for “testilying” and/or fabricating false evidence to bring about the police officers’ preconceived perceptions or determinations of guilt, including, but not limited to, such perceptions and/or determinations influenced by racial prejudice and/or ethnic bias.

118. That Defendant CITY, failed to implement proper procedures for the identifications of alleged perpetrators of violation of civil rights and of failing to properly train, supervise or discipline police supervisors and subordinate officers to prevent them from failing to assure that proper procedures were implemented.

119. That such policies, practices, customs and/or usages are a direct and proximate cause of the unconstitutional conduct alleged herein.

120. At all times material to this complaint, the Defendant, CITY, acting through its Police Department and through the individual Defendants, had de facto policies, practices, customs and/or usages of encouraging and/or tacitly sanctioning the cover-up of law enforcement officers’ misconduct, through the fabrication of false accounts and evidence and/or the withholding of exculpatory evidence.

121. The CITY’s policies, practices and customs in existence at the time of failing to supervise, train, instruct, and discipline police officers and encouraging their misconduct are further evidenced, inter alia, by the following:

- a. The Report of the Commission to Investigate Allegations of Police Corruption and the Anti-Corruption Procedures of the Police Department (“Mollen Commission Report”), dated July 7, 1994, states:

“In the face of this problem [of corruption], the [New York City Police] Department allowed its systems for fighting corruption virtually to collapse. It has become more concerned about the bad publicity that corruption disclosures generate than the devastating consequences of corruption itself. As a result, its corruption controls minimized, ignored and at times concealed corruption rather than root it out. Such an institutional reluctance to uncover corruption is not surprising. No institution wants its reputation tainted – especially a Department that needs the public’s confidence and partnership to be effective. A weak and poorly resourced anti-corruption apparatus minimizes the likelihood of such taint, embarrassment and potential harm to careers. Thus there is a strong institutional incentive to allow corruption efforts to fray and lose priority – which is exactly what this Commission uncovered. This reluctance manifested itself in every component of the Department’s corruption controls from command accountability and supervision, to investigations, police culture, training and recruitment.

“For at least the past decade, the system designed to protect the Department from corruption minimized the likelihood of uncovering it.”

Mollen Commission Report, at 2-3.

- b. Accordingly, in 1990, the Office of the Special Prosecutor, which investigated charges of police corruption, was abolished.
- c. The Mollen Commission concluded that police perjury and falsification of official records

“is probably the most common form of police corruption facing the criminal justice system

Regardless of the motives behind police falsifications, what is particularly troublesome about this practice is that it is widely tolerated by corrupt and honest officers alike, as well as their supervisors. Corrupt and honest officers told us that their supervisors knew or should have known about falsified versions of searches and arrests and never questioned them.

What breeds this intolerance is a deep-rooted perception among many officers of all ranks within the Department that nothing is really wrong with compromising facts to fight crime in the real world. Simply put, despite the devastating consequences of police falsifications, there is a persistent belief among many officers that it is necessary and justified, even if unlawful. As one dedicated officer put it, police officers often view falsification as, to use his words, ‘doing God’s work’ – doing whatever it takes to get a suspected criminal off the streets. This attitude is so entrenched, especially in high-crime precincts, that when investigators confronted one recently arrested officer with evidence of perjury, he asked in disbelief, ‘What’s wrong with that? They’re guilty.’”

Mollen Commission Report at 36, 40-41.

- d. Since at least 1984, Defendant, City, the NYPD and the Bronx County District Attorney's Office have been on notice that their training of police officers has been inadequate and that police officers joining the force, including, on information and belief, individual Defendant police officers herein, were disproportionately involved in misconduct and abuse. See, e.g., Mayor's Advisory Committee on Police Management and Personnel Policy, Final Report, February 24, 1987.
- e. The City of New York Office of the Comptroller, in an unpublished report, found that the police often conduct inadequate investigations.
- f. Prior to July 1993, the CCRB, which is responsible for receiving and investigating complaints of police misconduct made by citizens against members of the NYPD, operated as an agency of the NYPD rather than as an independent, unbiased entity.
- g. During the 1980s and early 1990s, in and about the time frame of this case, the CCRB received numerous complaints of police misconduct, but failed to fully investigate many of them and substantiated the guilt of the accused police officer in a suspiciously minuscule number of cases.
- h. On average, in 1985-1988, the CCRB conducted complete investigations of only 27 percent of the complaints received, closed 45 percent of the total cases without completing full investigations, and substantiated (i.e., found the subject employee guilty of the alleged act of misconduct) only 1.9 percent of the total complaints received.
- i. In 1989, the CCRB conducted complete investigations of only 29 percent of the 3,515 complaints received, closed 41 percent of the total cases without completing full investigations, and substantiated only 2.6 percent of the total complaints received.
- j. On average, in 1990-1992, the CCRB conducted complete investigations of only 36 percent of the complaints received, closed 40 percent of the total cases without completing full investigations, and substantiated only 3.3 percent of the total complaints received.
- k. The CCRB has also failed to recommend disciplinary action in the vast majority of its cases.
- l. On average, in 1985-1988, the CCRB recommended disciplinary action in only 6.7 percent of its disposed of cases.

- m. In 1989, the CCRB recommended specific disciplinary action to the Police Commissioner in only 3.4 percent of its disposed of cases (i.e., 110 recommendations of discipline out of the 3262 disposed of complaints).
- n. On average, in 1990-1992, the CCRB recommended disciplinary action in only 7.5 percent of its disposed of cases.
- o. Moreover, most of the complaints that are substantiated by the CCRB do not result in any kind of meaningful discipline. For instance, as of November 14, 1991, of the 81 officers who faced departmental trials in 1991, 47 were cleared, and 34 were disciplined with penalties ranging from loss of vacation to a 90-day suspension.
- p. Damages have been awarded to victims of police misconduct in 300-400 cases annually since 1988, as a result of out-of-court settlements or judgments in civil actions. Meanwhile, on average, only about 107 complaints were substantiated annually by the CCRB in 1988-1992.
- q. The money paid out by the City in damages to alleged victims of police misconduct rose from approximately $7 million in 1988, to $13.5 million in 1992, to $24 million in 1994.
- r. More than $82 million was paid in damages to victims of police misconduct in 1352 cases between 1992 and 1995.
- s. In the vast majority of police misconduct cases that result in verdicts or substantial settlements for the victims, Defendant City imposes no discipline, either before or after resolution in court, almost never reopens an investigation previously conducted after such resolution, and sometimes promotes the abusive officer to a position of greater authority despite the judicial resolution.
- t. In none of the approximately 8,000 complaints reviewed by the CCRB in 1987 and 1988 did any police officer provide evidence in support of a complainant.
- u. Former New York County District Attorney Robert Morgenthau has been quoted as acknowledging that in the NYPD there is a "code of silence," or a "code of protection" that exists among officers and that is followed carefully.
- v. In 1985, former Police Commissioner Benjamin Ward, testifying before a State Senate Committee, acknowledged the existence of the "code of silence" in the NYPD.
- w. Former New York City Police Commissioner Robert Daly wrote in 1991 that the "blue wall of solidarity with its macho mores and prejudices, its cover-ups and silence, is reinforced every day in every way."

122. Plaintiff's injuries were a direct and proximate result of the Defendants' wrongful policies, practices, customs and/or usages complained of herein and in existence at the time of the incidents complained of herein and of the knowing and repeated failure of the Defendant, CITY and the NYPD to properly supervise, train and discipline their police officers.

123. Defendant, CITY, knew or should have known that the acts alleged herein would deprive Plaintiff of his rights, in violation of the United States Constitution and the Constitution of the State of New York, including, without limitation, Plaintiff's freedom from deprivation of liberty without due process of law.

124. Defendant, CITY, is directly liable and responsible for the acts of the Defendant officers because it repeatedly and knowingly failed to properly supervise, train, instruct, and discipline them and because it repeatedly and knowingly failed to enforce the rules and regulations of the NYPD, and to require compliance with the constitutions and laws of the State of New York and the United States.

125. As a result of the above constitutionally impermissible conduct, Plaintiff was caused to suffer personal injuries, violation of civil rights, loss of liberty, emotional distress, anguish, anxiety, fear, and humiliation, among other injuries.

126. The amount of damages sought in this action exceeds the jurisdictional limits of all lower Courts that might otherwise have jurisdiction over this action.

ELEVENTH CAUSE OF ACTION

127. Plaintiff repeats and realleges the allegations set forth above as though fully set forth at length herein.

128. That the actions of Defendants heretofore described resulting in Plaintiff's stop, detention, imprisonment, search, assault and battery, use of excessive force, malicious prosecution, and denial of fair trial rights deprived Plaintiff of rights, privileges and immunities as guaranteed under the United States Constitution, Amendments Four, Six and Fourteen, and the Civil Rights Act, 42 U.S.C. §1983.

129. That in the event that Plaintiff is successful in the prosecution of the aforesaid claim(s), Plaintiff shall be a prevailing party within the meaning of 42 U.S.C. §1988 and entitled to the recovery of attorneys' fees from Defendants.

130. By reason of the foregoing, Defendants became liable to Plaintiff in a sum of money which exceeds the jurisdictional limits of all courts of lesser jurisdiction.

TWELFTH CAUSE OF ACTION

131. Plaintiff repeats and realleges the allegations set forth above as though fully set forth at length herein.

132. Plaintiff, ELIJAH BRISBON, is an African-American male who, at the time of the incidents complained of herein was twenty-three years of age.

133. Defendants initiated law enforcement action against Plaintiff based on his actual and/or perceived race, national origin, and/or color, rather than Plaintiff's behavior or other information linking him to suspected unlawful activity.

134. The Defendants engaged in bias-based profiling in violation of Section 14-151(c)(1) of the Administrative Code of the City of New York.

135. As a result of the foregoing, Plaintiff was caused to suffer personal injuries, violation of civil rights, loss of liberty, emotional distress, anguish, anxiety, fear, and humiliation, among other injuries.

136. The amount of damages sought in this action exceeds the jurisdictional limits of all lower Courts that might otherwise have jurisdiction over this action.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff, respectfully demands judgment against Defendants, THE CITY OF NEW YORK, OTNEIL FIGUEROA, and JOHN DOE and requests compensatory and punitive damages in a sum of money which exceeds the jurisdictional limits of all courts of lesser jurisdiction; costs, interest and attorneys' fees under 42 U.S.C. §1988 and N.Y.C. Administrative Code §141- 15(d), and such other and further relief as this court may deem appropriate and equitable.
